House of Representatives.

On motion of Mr. Hastin, the vote of yesterday, lay-ing on the table that part of the President's message in relation to the appointment of a Lieutenant General of the Army, was reconsidered, by a vete of yeas 86 to nays 84. The question recurring again on the motion to lay upon the table, it was decided in the negative, year 92, nays 97. The subject was then referred to the Commit tee of the Whole on the State of the Union.

Mr. Haralson's motion of yesterday to close the debate on the bill for increasing the regular army by the addition of ten regiments, was negatived, yeas 93 nays 96.

The bill was then taken up in Committee of the Whole when Mr. Smith, of Indiana, occupied the floor for some time in opposition to the administration and the war.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5, 1847.

Tea and Coffee Again—The Required Revenue—The

Licutenant Generalship—Silas Wright—Mr. Preston

King—The North and the South.

I was amszed to see an article in last night's Union deprecating the defeat of the tea and coffee measure, and hoping that the House would reconsider the vote given on Saturday, urging as an argument that it is meant by and not with a view to its permanent establishment—as if every body through the length and breath of the land tea and coffee measure, after the decided vote given in the House on Saturday. I feel confident in asserting that by those most interested in devising means for raising revenue, the tea and soffee measure has been abandoned -reluctantly of course—for to them the measure seemed the best that could be adopted; but still abandoned since Saturday. The Secretary of the Treasury will not revive it, unless something very extraordinary should oc-cur, such as would not leave a doubt as to the consent of the House to the imposition of the tax.

Let me dissect the vote a little. Of the forty-eight who voted against Mr. Wentworth's resolution, nine were from free States-three from Illi, nois, four from New York, two from Ohio - all the res. were slave State democrats, except Toombs of Georgia who is a whig. Of the one hundred and fifteen who vo-ted for the resolution, fifty-three are democrats. Eight of these are from the slave States, viz:—Johnson and McDowell, of Virginia; Perry, of Maryland; Johnson, of Tennessee; Tibbats, of Kentucky, Relfe, of Missouri; and Lumpkin and Jones, of Georgia. After such a vote it would require something very extraordinary to resurcitate the tax upon tea and coffee.

means, and the most available means, beyond all question, is, as suggested in my letter of yesterday to lay an additional tax of five per cent all round. The revenue this would efford would be amply sufficient, without being obliged to ske it out with some less practicable re source, as would be the case with any other means. It ing obliged to eke it out with some less practicable resource, as would be the case with any other means. It has been suggested that there might be a discrimination in levying this additional tax, as a higher rate than the present on some articles would amount to a prohibition. This discrimination might easily be made by the Committee of Ways and Means, having the details of the plan before them. But the exception should be made in no case except in favor of those articles which can really bear no increase of duty.

The committee met to-day. I do not know what conclusion they have come to, but I presume they will lay the result of their deliberations before the Secretary of the Treessury to-morrow. The project of creating a Lieuteant General is consigned to the fate which I have from the first awarded it. Had the naked proposition come from the President, without having been beforehand connected with the name of a civilian, I am not prepared to say that Congress might not have been favorably disposed towards it from the moment it was first mentioned in public. People at once expressed themselves opposed to the clevation of a man unacquainted with camps and inexperienced in the art of war, over an army upon whose operations depend the fate of our contest with a foreign nation. The thing was preposterous. Would Louis Phillippe attempt to take any ready debater out of the Chamber of Peers, and make him marshal of the French army in Algeria? Would Loui Sphillippe attempt to take any ready debater out of the Chamber of Peers, and make him marshal of the forces to India? Would even Nicholas of Russia deem it wise to attempt such an experiment? To the creation of the grade of Lieut. General, thave no objection, if the rank were to be conferred upon a soldier and not upon a civilian. I believe from the peculiar circumstances in which Gen. Scott and Gen. Taylor are placed towards each other, that the presence on the field of operations of some perron higher in rank than either, is necessary. I only regret the President' paralysis is calculated to bring disgrace upon our arms. This is not a fit time to fing the apple of discord into the midst of our national councils. But for the very respectable and patriotic source whence this document emanates, I should pronounce the entire affair a most wicked attempt to involve the national legislature in dissension, for the most questionable of all purposes, namely, to give direction to public sentiment in favor of a Presidentismal aspirant. At a time when our army stonds in need of reinforcements, clothing, munitions of war, money, and encouragement—at a time when an immense force of the enemy only awaits a favorable opportunity for attacking our inferior force; at a time when we can operate in Mexico, and when every thing depends upon immediate action; at a time when a proposition is before of ten regiments; at such a time to introduce an irrelevant subject, which is calculated to fire the jealousy of every southern man on the floor of the House, and to give rise to scenes which every patriot must wish ever, but especially at present, to be avoided, is an act of rashness, or tampering with the most momentous interests, that the most furious and fanatical abolitionist on the floor of Congress has not dared to venture upon—Should one human life be secrificed through; delay caused by this most untimely and injudicious piece of political management, what a weighty responsibility must rest upon the shoulders of Mr. Freston King. WASHINGTON, Jan. 5, 1847.

The President and the Congress.

The memoranda of the day of your reporter in each house will give you a pretty fair idea of the state of affairs in the capitol . In the Senate, Mr. Barrow's resolution relating to the pass of Santa Anna, was, on motion of Mr. Phelps, a per-sonal and political friend of the decessed, laid on the table. And this was right. Mr. Cameron introduced a resolution of some conse quence—an inquiry upon the Secretary as to the expediency of increasing the duties on certain articles embraced in the teriff of '46, with a view of increasing the revenue; and he desires the secretary to report what increate any articles will bear, and how much revenue revenue; and he desires the secretary to report what increate any articles will bear, and how much revenue will probably be derived from such increase. The resolution lies over till Thursday, and on that day we may have some talk upon it; but we doubt whether the secretary can be brought to acknowledge that any increase of revenues can be derived from an increase of duties of the articles embraced in the schedules of 1846. The secretary and the administration, and the orthodox of the party in Congress, have made the tariff of '46 a chapter in their creed, and it will go hard to persuade them that it is not infallible, though we have no doubt Mr. Cameron thinks the duties on cold iron might be considerably raised with a certainty of increasing the revenues. For other matters see your Senate report.

The House is the attraction this session, thus far, and it is true that the phases and aspects of affairs are most vividly developed.

Mr. King, of New York, is determined the slavery question in reference to any further annexations, shall be kept before the House. He is bent upon keeping that question in settive effervescence. His speech, to day, upon his motion of yesterday, shows that he has a settled purpose of bringing the South to face the question now. In all candour, we think he is a little too fist. Had he not better wait to see whether, in reality any 'urther territories will be annexed south of Texas. We have our doubts about it, and incline to think that, however long the war may last, the Rio Grande will be the boundary. The great question of the Lie utenant General, was laid out to-day in the House as cold as a wedge, and as flat as a Mexican tortilla. We hear some talk that certain friends of the President are still indisposed to give it up, and that they will propose the project in an amendment to the bill for the ten regiments. But there are others who say, just let them try it, and then you will see whether James a Mexican tortilla. We hear some talk that certain friends of the President are still i their conclusions on the question of the Lieutenant General.

The Odeon Olympic, with the extra attractions of Augusta and her sister, Mam'selle Dimier, and Monsisur Frederick, had a perfect jam to-night. There was quite a representation from both houses, and nearly all of the corps diplomatique with their Indies. Augusta takes her benefit to morrow night. Her engagement, and that of her associates, has been quite a hit for Kilmiste.

The ball for the benefit of the suffering people of Ireland, at the Odd Fellow's Temple, we are informed, was brilliant and well patronized. The Mayor and many of our principal citizens were among the managers.

But the main question of this epistle, to wit, the President and Congress, we shall have, in the main, to postpene till to morrow.

P. S.—It is said that the young man Dr. Wickham, who shot himself in this city to-day, was driven to the act from the death of a young lady to whom he was attached. The man was deubtless under an aberration of mind from some cause or other.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5, 1847. Melancholy Suicide. A young man named Wickham, of the medical profes sion, from Richmond, Va., committed suicide at the pis-tol gallery attached tolCopp's bowling saloon in this city. to-day, at about 2 o'clock. He had gone there for the os-tensible purpose of practising, and was found a short time after lying dead upon the floor, having discharged a pistol into his head, placing the muzzle upon his right temple. He left a note stating that his life was a life of misery, and the sconer he ended it the better. He had taken a large dose of laudanum a few evenings before, and was astonished in the morning when the boy came to make the fire that the noise awakened him. The decessed was a single man, about 30 years of age, and is said to have been a man of high respectability. He boarded at Coleman's hotel.

On motion of Mr. Dayrox, the Committee on Commerce were instructed to inquire into the expediency of annexing the port of Jersey city to the collection district of New York.

Mr. Camenous submitted a resolution, calling on the Secretary of the Treasury to report to the Senate upon what articles embraced in the tariff act of 1846, the duties can be increased with a view of additional revenues; and to what extent they may be increased, so as to secure the greatest increase of revenues derived from such articles.

TUSCALOGA.

Mr. Bagny's resolution instructing an inquiry with reference to the expediency of creeting a national foundry at Tuscaloga, Alabama, was adopted.

The bill granting a life pension to the widow of the late Col. McCrea, of the U. S. Army, was taken up.

Col. Benton saked that the report of the M. litary Committee be read, which was accordingly done.

Mr. Calhours said he had not heard the report, but that he believed in this case it was proposed to pay a pension for life to the widow of an officer who did not die in the field, or in active service. There was no telling to what extent this principle might be carried if it was once established. The law relating to pensions to widows of officers and seamen of the navy was founded upon the fund of the prize money of the service. With the army the case was entirely different. This might be avery meritorious case, but it would only open the door to innumerable other cases that must follow. The subject demanded the serious consideration of the Senate. This case, if allowed, would doubtless drag after it a train of other cases, adding a new class of pensioners to the already unprecedented pension list of this Government; for we had already a pension list of this Government; for we had already a pension list of this Government; in the story of nations. The stressury was not now in a condition to bear new burthens; and he should vote against the bill. Upon the question of agreeing to it, he should call for the eyes and noes.

[Message from the President of the United States]

Mr. Benton said the Senator from South Carolins was entirely right; that if this bill passed it would lead to further applications of the same character. In all that he was sperfectly correct. We want to put them on the same footing as the widows of officers and seamen of the naval service But this was not the proper b had passed the House, the State of Michigan would have been saved the necessity of selling out the Central railroad.

Mr. Bacay said that he could see no difference between the grasting of lands for these internal improvements, and the taking so much money out of the public treasury; and at a time when there was no money in the treasury, it was not altogether expedient to make grants to the States.

General Cast elequently defended the west, and the expediency and justice of this bill.

Mr. Cathour said he would have no objection to voting alternate sections along the lines of these public works; but the same objection he had aftered against the bill of the last session existed in this. Where the alternate sections had already been sold, the bill proposed to give lands at the option of the State in other places, without reference to the advantage of the Federal government in their selection; but rather against it.—He should, therefore, rote against the bill.

The bill was ordered to an engressment—270s 26, neers 15.

were not acquainted with this fact, and as if the House had it not in view when it deliberately voted on Saturday.

It would be sheer madness to attempt a revival of this upon a man whose military talents and experience would have ensured the success of the Executive recommendation of the House, as a candidate for the next Presidency. In other words, Mr. Freston king, of New York, under pretext of personal explanation, read a long argument opening up the contest between the North and the South in relation to the existence of slavery in the territory, if any, to be acquired by the existing war. He wishes to give the appropriation of two millions asked by the Fresident at the close of the last session and again in his annual mes age at the commencement of the present one, but he desires; to incorporate in the appropriation set, a provise against the existence of slavery in the territory the acquisition of which it is designed to facilitate.

The paper read by Mr. King is very long, and contains the arguments which have repeatedly been urged on that side of the question. All through the House, the question was asked during the reading of the document, whether or not it has emanated from Mr. Wright's pen—The style is certainly not unlike that eithe Ex-tovernor, and the sentiments are well knownfor be those which his friends attribute to him.

The Southern members were, during the reading of the document, burning with indignation, and in the dehate that ensued on the special order of the day—the bill for raising and equipping the additional regiments of regulars—frequent allusion was made to the contrivance by which Mr King had get poucession of the floor, for the purpose of reading his brief. Mr. Hilliard of Alabams made a very powerful speech, in which he besought the north not to sgitate this question now, as any attempt to open that sore would but tend to weaken our operations against the enemy, to whom he contended we should prosent a combined froat.

And he is right. Distracted councils can be productive of but the mest disastrous connequences. Internal dispensions are calculated to paralyse our strength, and that
